OPEN LETTER.

"Under free coinage the Government will simply coin the silver into dollars and hand these dollars back to the owner of the bullion. So far as the value of one of these dollars, in comparison with the standard money of the enlightened nations of the world goes, it will be measured by its purchasing power. It is entirely dependent upon itself, with not even a promise of any protection from the Government. It will be worth just the amount of silver it contains, which at present is about 50 cents.

As matters now stand a mine producing 10,000 ounces of silver bullion per month will pay the monthly wages of fifty-three miners at $4 per day in gold.
With the adoption of free coinage 5,000 ounces of silver bullion, or one-half of the original amount, will do the same thing in silver. The other half will be clear profit to the mine owner, unless the owner voluntarily pays the miner eight of these dollars for each day's work. Will he do so? Not to any extent—and not at all where the wages of miners now are, and have been held at $4 a day for thirty years, as on the Comstock, Silver City, Bodie and elsewhere.

Then when a miner goes to the store to get a pair of boots, worth (under our present sound money system) $4, he will have to put up eight of these silver dollars to get them. He will then discover, when too late, that he has voluntarily cut his own wages in two in the middle, and his employer gets the other half.
The same thing will happen to the gold miner. The owner will have to sell only half the amount of gold bullion to buy enough silver dollars to pay his miners.
My record as a miner, wage earner, and wage payer for forty years in California and Nevada will show that I have always advocated high wages, and I now insist that our prosperity depends, not only upon good wages, but upon good money. Free coinage for this country alone, means a single silver standard.

The miners of Nevada are an intelligent, reading, thinking class of men and I warn them to study the facts relative to the money question fully, and not depend upon theory, and they will surely vote for sound money and protection to their own labor. R. K. COLCORD.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26th, 1896.

So far as the work at the Washington end is concerned the Presidential campaign is over. There is no longer any bustle around either the Bryan or the McKinley headquarters. The work of sending out campaign literature is ended, and if any votes are changed between this time and election day it will not be because of anything done in Washington. The fight is now transferred to the voting precincts. While there is less hysteria displayed at Bryan headquarters than was on tap last week, the democrats and populists are claiming that Bryan will certainly be elected by a small majority of the electoral college and that the silver men will elect a majority in the next house. At Mc-Kinley headquarters, they are actually jubilant in their confidence that Mc-Kinley will receive the 325 electoral votes claimed for him by Vice-Chairman Apsley, of the Republican Congressional Committee, or more, and that a number of Republican members of the next House will not fall short of the 224 claimed by Mr. Apsley.

Outside of the political headquarters the impression has been growing in Washington for some days that McKinley will win, not by so large a vote as Mr. Apsley claims, but still win. So general has this idea become that most people speak of it as a matter of course, and nine men out of ten taken to random on the street and asked who they thought would be elected replied without any hesitation, "McKinley," and yet a majority of these men were for Bryan. During a period covering five Presidential elections, I have never known the opinion of the result of one of them to be so unanimous in Washington. This is, perhaps, largely attributable to the wish of 90 per cent of more of the government employes that Mc-Kinley will win, but it isn't all chargeable to that, as many who think that McKinley will win do not wish him to do so. But whatever the cause, the case is just as I have stated it.

If Troubled With Rheumatism Read This.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 16, 1894.—I have used Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism and found it to be all that is claimed for it. I believe it to be the best preparation for rheumatism and deep seated muscular pains on the market and cheerfully recommend it to the public. J. G. Brooks, dealer in boots, shoes, etc., No. 18 Main St.
